Turner-Howard Feud Reopened at Harlan C. H.

The Factions Have a Duel With Knives and Pistols.

Two Turner Boys Are Killed Outright in the Affray With Dr. Nolin, Who Was a Supporter of the Howards—More Trouble Feared.

PINEVILLE, Ky., Feb. 7.—On the streets at Harlan courthouse, Tuesday, John and Will Turner, son and half brother respectively of old George B. Turner, were killed by Dr. Will Nolin.

The Turners were, it is said, drunk, and in town to attend court. Nolin was in one of the stores of the place when Will Turner came in and began to abuse Nolin violently, at the same time flourishing a knife. Nolin, without wasting any time, pulled his pistol and shot Turner four times, killing him.

John Turner, hearing of the shooting, came on the scene about that time and began shooting at Nolin. The latter then, turning his pistol on the other Turner, killed him at the first shot. Nolin was unhurt.

There is said to be intense excitement over the affair, and further trouble is looked for. There was bad blood between the Turners and Nolin, growing out of a shooting scrape which occurred a couple of months ago, in which some of the Turners shot and wounded James Nolin, an elder brother of Dr. Nolin.

The latter is young and a brother of B. F. Nolin, superintendent of the schools for Harlan, and who was the republican nominee for the legislature at the last election. He was defeated by Dr. Blair, of this county.

Dr. Nolin has another brother John, who, about four years ago, shot and killed two men in much the same fashion as this was done. He is still a fugitive from justice.

Dr. Nolin gave himself up to the authorities.

HANGED BY A MOB.

Andrew Pikkarien Betrayed the Trust of Friends and Fatally Assailed Their Child.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Feb. 8.—The small village of Ewen, east of this city, on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, was all excitement over a lynching. The name of the victim was Andrew Pikkarien. He was a Russian Finn, and lived a few miles from Ewen, at a little place called Bruce's Crossing.

Monday night Peter Hatelli and wife left their home to be gone for a day, and left their 8-year-old daughter at home in the care of Pikkarien. Her temporary guardian put the little girl to bed early, but about 10 o'clock at night he took the sleeping child from the bed and assaulted her. Two men who were present claim they were fearful of the powerful assailant and dared not interfere.

Pikkarien was arrested as soon as the crime he had committed became known and brought to Ewen, where he was placed in jail. He admitted having committed the crime. The child is expected to die.

Tuesday night, as soon as it became known that Pikkarien admitted his guilt, 50 indignant citizens, wearing masks, surrounded the frail structure in which he was placed, determined to lynch him. Officers protested, but to no avail.

The jail doors were smashed in and the culprit brought out by force, a rope placed around his neck, and he was dragged 80 rods to a railroad trestle, where he was hanged. The village is still wild over the outrage, and should the citizens find the guilty man's associates, they will also be lynched.

STAR CHAMBERS

Jones, Vest and Mills Work on the Tariff Bill.

They Preserve the Deepest Mystery Concerning Their Work.

Coal and Sugar to Be Taxed—Such Is Believed to Be Practically Agreed Upon—No Duty Will Probably Be Placed on Iron—Whisky Tax Increased.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The democratic members of the finance committee entrusted with the delicate task of framing a tariff bill which can pass the senate, Messrs. Jones, Vest and Mills, have adopted the star chamber method toward their democratic colleagues of the house, and preserve the deepest mystery concerning their work on the bill.

It was learned Wednesday that the committee has made a careful study of the opposition which the bill is likely to encounter from certain democratic senators, and a provision will be made to head off such opposition as is believed to be formidable.

The most important concession is the placing of a duty on coal. Unwilling as are such radical free traders as Senators Vest and Mills, to remove so-called raw materials from the free list, and especially coal, they recognize that unless Senator Gorman and other senators, representing coal states, are placated by a duty on coal, the passage of the bill in the senate is almost hopeless.

For similar reasons the committee is inclined to place a duty on sugar. Representatives of the sugar refiners have made strong appeals to the committee to impose a discriminating duty on refined sugar. It is argued that it would be an injustice to refiners who have invested millions of dollars in elaborate plants to be compelled to pay the same duty for raw sugar that is imposed on the refined article, since raw sugar always contains a large percentage of dirt.

Refiners ask that a discriminating duty of 3 1/2 mills per pound be added to whatever duty is levied on raw sugar, which presumably will be one cent per pound. The committee, while favoring a discriminating duty on refined sugar for the reason assigned by the refiners, is unwilling to make the rate higher than one mill per pound additional.

So little is feared from the opposition of the Alabama senators that there is no intention at present of placing a duty on iron ore. The Alabama senators, Messrs. Morgan and Pugh, while against the administration, realize that the only interests in their state which demand a duty on iron ore are represented by northern capitalists, who have established plants there, and who have given profitable employment to some of their constituents. With his re-election to the senate pending in the immediate future, Senator Morgan prefers to offend this comparatively limited class of Alabama citizens by destroying their prosperity than run counter to the great majority of the died-in-wool bourbon citizens who believe in the confederate constitution, which declared protection unconstitutional.

Similar disregard will be paid to the protests of the New York senators against the attack on the collar and cuff industry of Troy, and to wool men.

It is believed the tax on whisky will be increased and the bonded period extended.

Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, believes that the bill will be reported from the committee in a fortnight and will be in conference by May 1. It is likely that the bill, as it comes from the finance committee, will contain even more advantageous features than did the measure as it passed the house.

ANOTHER FIRE.

One-Fourth of the World's Fair Agricultural Building Burned.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—An alarm of fire turned in from the agricultural building, at Jackson park, at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon, made people apprehensive that all that remains of the once beautiful white city would be ashes. A stiff wind was blowing from the south, and it was only by heroic efforts on the part of the fire department that only part of the structure was burned. The only exhibit damaged was a large number of cases of Russian wines which were awaiting shipment.

The Columbian museum had stored in the building a large quantity of seeds, grains and grasses, and these were all destroyed. The loss, outside the loss on the building, will probably reach $5,000. The fire caught in the southwest corner, and was undoubtedly of incendiary origin. The fire was got under control by 6 o'clock, before it had burned over a quarter of the building.

39 TO 28.

Federal Elections Law Repeal Bill Passes the Senate.

John I. Davenport, of New York, Is Now a Private Citizen.

The Bill Passed Is Precisely, in Terms and Letter, the Measure Heretofore Passed by the House—All That Is Required Is the President's Signature.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The senate Wednesday by a vote of 39 yeas to 28 nays passed the bill to repeal the noted federal election law. The 28 negative votes were cast by the republicans. The 39 affirmative votes were cast by democrats, by Senator Stewart, of Nevada, and the three populists, Kyle, Allen and Peffer.

The bill passed is precisely in terms and letter the measure heretofore passed by the lower house. All that is now required to give it the force of law is the president's signature, which will be promptly forthcoming.

At 12:30 the house bill to repeal the federal elections law was taken up and Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.) addressed the senate in opposition to it. He said that he was one of the five persons now in the senate who had voted for the elections law of 1870 and he had been often since called upon to explain and defend it.

To the charge made on the democratic side that the law of 1870 was sectional, Mr. Hoar said that that law was applied only to cities of over 20,000 population; that when it was passed there were fifty-seven such cities in the north and but five in the south, and that of those fifty-seven northern communities eleven were in the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Mr. Gray (D., Delaware) replied to Mr. Hoar, who, he said, had mistaken or misrepresented the democratic position to the election laws. They wanted to wipe them out, not because they protected the weak from the strong; it was because democrats believed from a bitter experience that those laws were not only at war with every tradition of local self-government. Not only did they degrade the states of which they were citizens, but they buttressed up the very fraud which they were professedly intended to destroy.
